First, I would like to thank Tayler for allowing me to do a guest post on this really cool website. I see that you just did a kid rock video also but I thought I would share a few of my favorites with you also. I believe that Kid Rock has gotten a bad reputation because of his personal life and his antics so most people don't bother to give his music a chance. When or if they do give him a chance they always find that he has one of the smoothest voices in music today and despite his style of music he is one of the truly greatest singers of our time.

The song "only god knows why" is one of those few songs of his where you get the chance to appreciate his voice. If you have never heard it or any of Kid Rock's music then this would be a great song for you to start with. Of course "all summer long" is another good choice as you have already pointed out.

A few more of my favorite Kid Rock songs are "Midnight Train To Memphis", "Cocky", and "Cowboy". Midnight Train To Memphis is one of those songs that a country music fan could easily learn to love because of the way it starts. The ending is all Kid Rock's special form of white boy rap, but given the chance this is one of his best songs.
